- Deviations are valid only if confirmed in writing by DroneStock.
- This Agreement must be read in conjunction with DroneStock’s General Terms and Conditions, Licence Terms and Privacy Policy.
- In the event of a conflict between this Agreement and a separate Enterprise Agreement, that separate agreement prevails.

3. Relationship between the parties

- The Contributor acts entirely independently and for their own account and risk.
- This Agreement does not create an employment relationship, partnership, general partnership, joint venture, agency or authority to represent another party.
- The Contributor determines entirely independently:
 - o where;
 - o when;
 - o how;

o and whether Content is created and supplied.

- DroneStock does not provide work, a work schedule, minimum purchase commitments, guaranteed income or operational instructions.
- Payments qualify solely as remuneration for the exploitation and licensing of Content and not as wages or remuneration for work.
- The Contributor is fully responsible for their own equipment, insurance, permits, taxes, contributions and statutory obligations.
- DroneStock does not act as an aviation operator, operator, commissioning party or party with operational responsibility for the Contributor’s drone flights.

4. Contributor account and verification

- DroneStock may refuse, restrict, suspend or terminate accounts at its discretion.
- DroneStock is not obliged to admit Contributors to the Platform.

5. Ownership of Content and exploitation rights

- The Contributor retains ownership of the intellectual property rights in the Content.
- The Contributor grants DroneStock a non-exclusive, worldwide, transferable, sublicensable commercial licence, unless exclusivity is separately agreed in writing. The remuneration arrangements in this Agreement and separate written arrangements continue to apply. The licence entitles DroneStock to:
 - o store the Content;
 - o reproduce it;
 - o distribute it;
 - o publish it;
 - o promote it;
 - o sell it;
 - o process it;
 - o compress it;
 - o convert it;

Contributor Agreement DroneStock – 2026 (V4)

security purposes.

- DroneStock does not acquire ownership of AI systems developed by the Contributor but retains all rights in its own detection, security, moderation and fraud prevention systems.
- Unless otherwise agreed in writing, DroneStock will not use Contributor Content to train generative AI models that independently generate Content.
- DroneStock may modify thumbnails, previews, watermarks, metadata, descriptions, security measures and file formats.
- DroneStock may include Content in collections, campaigns, advertisements, newsletters, social media channels and promotional materials.
- DroneStock may commercially exploit, promote and publish Contributor profiles, portfolios and public pages within the Platform.
- This licence remains valid for as long as the Content is available on the Platform and to the extent necessary for Licences already granted, archiving, compliance, enforcement, backups and platform administration.
- DroneStock may process Content, selected image frames and associated metadata for AI-assisted descriptions, categorisation, recognition of visible subjects, translation, discoverability and location enrichment.
- For these purposes, DroneStock may engage external service providers and provide them with the files or data needed for that processing. Personal data is processed in accordance with the Privacy Policy and applicable law. This permission does not provide any additional consent to generative AI model training.
- The Contributor checks metadata submitted to them for review and corrects or reports known errors. An AI suggestion is not a guarantee of accuracy or lawfulness.
- Following a legally valid transfer as referred to in Article 25, the existing exploitation rights may be continued by the successor operator, including where the Platform continues under another name or is integrated into a successor platform. The agreed restrictions and remuneration arrangements continue to apply. This does not transfer copyright in Contributor Content to DroneStock or the successor operator.

6. Contributor warranties

- The Contributor warrants that:
 - o they have full authority to supply the Content;
 - o they are the creator and/or rights holder of the Content;
 - o all rights have been validly obtained;

 - o European drone legislation;
 - o national aviation legislation;
 - o regulations of EASA, ILT, LVNL and other supervisory authorities;
 - o no-fly zones;

 - o local regulations;
 - o privacy legislation;
 - o safety requirements;
 - o regulations of airports, municipalities, provinces, police, defence authorities and other bodies.
- DroneStock does not exercise operational control over drone flights.
- The Contributor acknowledges that DroneStock cannot verify whether drone operations were carried out lawfully.
- DroneStock may check or enrich the stated location and other metadata using image analysis, GPS data, SRT files, EXIF data, map services and additional information from the Contributor.
- Such metadata or quality checks do not constitute operational control over the drone flight and do not constitute a statement that the flight, recording or intended use was lawful.
- The Contributor remains fully responsible for the lawfulness of obtaining the Content.
- The Contributor warrants that they have independently assessed whether the drone operations were lawful.

8. Prohibited Content

- It is prohibited to upload Content that:

- DroneStock may make separate arrangements for:
 - o Exclusive Content;
 - o semi-exclusive Content;
 - o first-release periods;
 - o regional exclusivity;
 - o premium partnerships;
 - o enterprise libraries.
- “Exclusive Content” means exclusivity solely in relation to commercial exploitation through stock, licensing or comparable content platforms, unless otherwise agreed in writing.
- The Contributor must not exploit Exclusive Content elsewhere during the agreed exclusivity period.
- Unless otherwise agreed in writing, the Contributor may continue to use Content for their own portfolio, social media and promotional purposes.

11. Moderation, removal and sole discretion

- DroneStock may, at its own sole discretion and without prior warning:
 - o reject Content;
 - o remove Content;
 - o modify metadata;
 - o modify previews;
 - o change prices;
 - o restrict visibility;
 - o suspend accounts;
 - o terminate accounts;
 - o block uploads;
 - o require additional information.
- DroneStock may take such measures for any reason, including compliance, quality, safety, commercial or reputational considerations.
- To the extent required by law, DroneStock provides the Contributor with reasons for a decision to restrict, suspend or terminate. Where a statutory advance notice period applies, DroneStock observes it. This does not apply if and to the extent that applicable law permits an exception, including in certain cases of fraud, abuse, statutory obligations, security risks or repeated infringements. DroneStock is not obliged to actively sell, promote or keep Content visible.
- The Contributor has no entitlement to minimum visibility, ranking, distribution or sales results.
- DroneStock may moderate, restrict or remove Contributor profiles, URLs and public pages.
- DroneStock may take all measures without liability to compensate the Contributor.

12. Contributor profiles and public pages

- DroneStock may create, publish and manage Contributor

profiles, portfolios and public Contributor pages within the Platform.

- DroneStock may publicly display, among other things:
 - o the Contributor’s name;
 - o trading name;
 - o biographies;
 - o profile photographs;
 - o logos;
 - o portfolio Content;
 - o social media links;
 - o location details;
 - o statistics;
 - o public account information.
- DroneStock may make Contributor profiles indexable by search engines and include them in internal or external promotional materials.
- DroneStock independently determines:
 - o URL structures;
 - o visibility;
 - o ranking;
 - o presentation;
 - o category classification;
 - o featured positions;
 - o search results;
 - o branding within the Platform.
- The Contributor does not acquire ownership rights in:
 - o URLs;
 - o profile pages;
 - o SEO positions;
 - o visitor data;
 - o rankings;
 - o analytics;
 - o engagement data;
 - o follower data;
 - o Customer data;
 - o platform traffic.
- DroneStock may, at its discretion, modify, restructure, merge, restrict or remove Contributor profiles, URLs, portfolios and public pages.
- DroneStock is not obliged to generate traffic, leads, visibility, promotion or sales for the Contributor.
- The Contributor remains fully responsible for the lawfulness of supplied profile information, trading names, logos, links and other public information.
- The Contributor warrants that supplied profile information does not infringe third-party rights.
- DroneStock may use the Contributor’s name, trading name, logos, profile information and Content for marketing, promotional and commercial purposes within and outside the Platform.
- The ranking and visibility of Content and Contributor profiles may be determined by factors including relevance to the search query, metadata, location, technical quality, commercial usefulness, timeliness, popularity, sales performance, completeness of the profile and Content, compliance and quality assessments, and any editorial or promotional choices made by DroneStock.
- DroneStock does not disclose the full workings of algorithms, exact weightings or information whose disclosure could enable abuse, manipulation, fraud or compromise the security of the Platform.

Contributor Agreement DroneStock – 2026 (V4)

- Alongside Contributor Content, DroneStock may offer its own Content or Content from affiliated parties. DroneStock is not obliged to rank, present or promote its own Content and Contributor Content identically. Differences may arise from factors including commercial relevance, quality, availability, metadata, timeliness, campaigns, customer demand and editorial choices. A Creator plan does not entitle the Contributor to preferential ranking over DroneStock's own Content or Content from other Contributors.
- Through the Creator account, the Contributor has access only to the data and statistics made available there by DroneStock, such as information on their own Content, sales and payouts. The Contributor does not gain access to Customers' personal data unless DroneStock expressly makes it available and a lawful basis exists.
- Following termination of the Creator account, access to the dashboard and platform data may end. DroneStock may retain data required by law or for administration in accordance with the Privacy Policy and applicable retention obligations.

13. Verification, audits and evidence

- DroneStock may require additional information or evidence, including:
 - o flight logs;
 - o EXIF data;
 - o permits;
 - o permissions;
 - o drone registrations;
 - o proof of ownership;
 - o original source files.
- In the event of refusal, DroneStock may remove Content, suspend payouts or restrict accounts.
- The Contributor cooperates with reasonable compliance and fraud investigations.

14.1 Marketplace remuneration and Creator plans

- The current offering for new Creator plans consists of Free and Pro. Article 14.3 applies to existing differing arrangements and historical Creator plans.
- Free has no monthly subscription charge. The Contributor receives 35% of the selling price of their Content after discounts and excluding VAT. The remainder constitutes DroneStock's platform fee.
- Pro has a standard monthly price of €49 including Dutch VAT at 21%, equivalent to €40.50 excluding VAT. Where different VAT treatment applies, the amount payable is stated before the subscription is concluded. The Contributor receives 70% of the selling price of their Content after discounts and excluding VAT. The remainder constitutes DroneStock's platform fee.
- Marketplace remuneration is calculated for each order line on the agreed selling price after volume discounts, promotions and other applicable discounts, excluding VAT. Transaction costs are not additionally deducted from this calculation basis unless separately agreed in writing.
- Creator remuneration is rounded to euro cents. The platform share is the difference between sales proceeds excluding VAT and Creator remuneration.
- The applicable Creator plan and remuneration percentage are recorded when the payment session for the purchase is created. Entitlement to remuneration arises only upon confirmation of successful payment. A change to or expiry of the Creator plan between that recording and payment does not change the recorded percentage. A newly created payment session uses the plan and percentage then applicable. Later changes do not result in recalculation of purchases already paid for. Refunds, chargebacks and other adjustments are processed separately and remain traceable to the original purchase.

- DroneStock determines the available selling prices, price tiers and discount structures. Selected Contributors may separately be enabled to choose a higher selling price within the settings offered: Premium Pricing.
- Premium Pricing is separate from the Creator plan. Activation does not automatically confer a higher remuneration percentage, preferential ranking or guaranteed sales.
- Changing or ending the Creator plan does not automatically reset existing selling prices to a standard price. Separate price changes are processed in accordance with the applicable arrangements.
- DroneStock may change Creator plans, subscription prices, platform fees and payout policy in accordance with Article 29 and subject to applicable existing rights.
- Article 15 applies to Enterprise Agreements.

14.2 Creator subscriptions

- Paid Creator plans are entered into for an indefinite term and billed per calendar month unless otherwise agreed separately.
- The start date, first payment and next invoice date are stated before the subscription is concluded. Where the subscription starts during a calendar month, the first payment may be calculated pro rata until the next regular invoice date.
- Subscription charges are billed in advance and collected automatically using the payment method offered by DroneStock.
- The Contributor authorises DroneStock and its payment service provider to collect periodic subscription charges due using the chosen payment method.
- If SEPA Direct Debit is used, the required electronic mandate is recorded and managed through the payment service provider.
- The Contributor may cancel the subscription at any time. The paid plan remains active until the end of the subscription period already paid for and is not renewed thereafter.
- The effective date and any financial adjustment of a plan change are stated before that change is confirmed.
- The effects of a plan change on marketplace remuneration are determined in accordance with Article 14.1 and the transitional arrangements in Article 14.3.
- If a payment fails or is reversed, DroneStock may suspend the paid Creator plan or revert it to Free until payment has been made.
- Subscription charges and platform fees already due remain payable on termination.
- DroneStock may change or discontinue the availability and content of Creator plans subject to applicable laws and regulations.
- Where the Contributor acts as a consumer, statutory consumer rights apply, including any applicable right of withdrawal. If the Contributor requests immediate activation of the paid Creator plan during the withdrawal period, DroneStock may require the consents and declarations required by law.

Contributor Agreement DroneStock – 2026 (V4)

- A free trial or temporary grant is not automatically converted into a paid subscription without a separately confirmed paid agreement.

14.3 Existing rights and historical Creator plans

- A change to this Agreement does not apply retroactively to sales already paid for or remuneration already due.
- Existing individual arrangements and validly acquired rights are not replaced solely by publication or acceptance of a new version.
- For Contributors with an existing free Pro grant covered by the transitional arrangements, Creator remuneration remains 75% for payment sessions created during that period. After expiry, the percentage of the Creator plan then applicable applies to newly created payment sessions: 70% for Pro or 35% for Free. Differing individual arrangements continue to apply. DroneStock will confirm the applicable end date to the Contributor upon request.
- An extension or new trial does not automatically extend the historical 75% percentage. The terms of the new period are communicated in advance. A paid continuation of Pro is subject to the percentage agreed for it.
- Creator Premium is no longer offered. Premium Pricing remains a separate feature and is not a Creator Premium subscription.
- Discontinuing the offering of Creator Premium does not automatically terminate any existing Creator Premium agreement.
- Where an older arrangement differs from the standard rules, the applicable transition is determined separately and communicated to the Contributor, subject to their contractual and statutory rights.

15. Enterprise and bespoke deals

- A different remuneration arrangement may apply to Enterprise Agreements.
- Unless otherwise agreed in writing, the Contributor receives 50% of net licence revenue, as determined exclusively in DroneStock's administration, directly attributable to Content supplied by the Contributor within the relevant Enterprise Agreement.
- DroneStock independently determines:
 - o pricing;
 - o bundles;
 - o discount structures;
 - o licensing models;
 - o contractual terms;
 - o commercial strategy.
- A purchase price for shares in the operator or for a transfer of the business does not constitute marketplace remuneration or Enterprise licence revenue solely by virtue of that sale. Existing entitlements to remuneration continue to apply.
- Where a transaction also includes separate remuneration for licensing Contributor Content, that element is assessed separately under the applicable remuneration arrangements. The name given to the transaction is not decisive.

16. Payouts, self-billing and tax responsibility

- DroneStock informs the Contributor in advance of the applicable payout frequency, any minimum threshold, required verification details and conditions for payout.
- The account overview distinguishes between remuneration due, available remuneration, amounts paid out and amounts temporarily blocked from payout pending a specific check.

- Changes to payout policy are communicated in advance in accordance with Article 29. Remuneration already due does not lapse solely because the Contributor is no longer active on the Platform.
- Refunds, chargebacks, fraud, claims, administrative errors, statutory withholdings and taxes may be offset.
- DroneStock may temporarily or permanently suspend payouts in the event of:
 - o suspected fraud;
 - o copyright claims;
 - o privacy claims;
 - o aviation investigations;
 - o compliance investigations;
 - o breach of this Agreement;
 - o requests from authorities.
- DroneStock may permanently offset or withhold payouts if loss, claims, fines, chargebacks or liabilities arise from Contributor Content.
- The Contributor expressly agrees to self-billing by DroneStock.
- DroneStock issues the self-billing invoice on behalf of the Contributor and states on it, where required by law, that the invoice was issued by the customer.
- Self-billing documents are prepared on the basis of the Contributor's tax status registered with DroneStock.
- If the Contributor is subject to VAT and VAT is lawfully due on the remuneration, the applicable VAT is included on the self-billing document in accordance with the applicable tax rules.
- If the Contributor is not subject to VAT or may not charge VAT, no VAT is added to the remuneration.
- The Contributor is responsible for checking self-billing documents and must notify DroneStock of any inaccuracies without delay.
- DroneStock may issue invoices, credit notes or other administrative documents relating to payouts on behalf of the Contributor.
- The Contributor is fully responsible for:
 - o VAT returns;
 - o income tax;
 - o tax classification;
 - o assessing whether activities constitute a business or hobby income;
 - o statutory registrations;
 - o correct tax treatment of payouts;
 - o correct and up-to-date tax details.
- The Contributor must report changes to:
 - o VAT status;
 - o Chamber of Commerce registration status;
 - o country of establishment;
 - o bank account details;to DroneStock without delay.
- DroneStock does not provide tax, legal or financial advice and accepts no liability for the Contributor's tax treatment.

17. Licences already granted

- Licences already granted remain fully valid following:
 - o removal of Content;
 - o termination of an account;
 - o termination of the relationship.

Contributor Agreement DroneStock – 2026 (V4)

- The Contributor cannot revoke Licences already granted.
- DroneStock may continue to support and administer Licences already granted.
- A sale of the Platform or a legally valid transfer of this Agreement does not automatically terminate or extend Licences already granted to Customers.

18. Indemnity

- The Contributor fully indemnifies DroneStock, BumbleB.nu B.V., directors, employees, partners, shareholders and affiliated parties against all demands, fines, loss, sanctions, losses, claims, costs and reasonable legal costs arising from or relating to:

 - o misleading Content;
 - o tax claims;
 - o employment law claims;
 - o claims concerning false self-employment;
 - o fines or sanctions imposed by aviation authorities;
 - o enforcement relating to no-fly zones or CTR infringements;
 - o tax or employment law reclassification;
 - o claims by public authorities;
 - o Content supplied by the Contributor.

19. DroneStock's liability

- DroneStock is liable only in the event of intent or deliberate recklessness.
- DroneStock is not liable for acts, omissions or infringements by Contributors.
- Any liability of DroneStock is limited to the amount paid to the Contributor in the twelve months preceding the event.
- DroneStock is never liable for:
 - o indirect loss;
 - o consequential loss;
 - o loss of revenue;
 - o loss of profit;
 - o reputational harm;
 - o loss of data;
 - o removed Content;
 - o account termination;
 - o changes in visibility or algorithms;
 - o missed sales;
 - o acts of third parties;
 - o unauthorised copying, downloading, theft or unauthorised distribution of Content by third parties, including following a security incident;
 - o outages at hosting, cloud or payment providers.
- Every claim lapses twelve months after it arises.

20. Platform availability

- DroneStock does not guarantee uninterrupted or error-free availability of the Platform.

- Maintenance, updates, outages, cyber incidents, hacks, personal data breaches, government measures or third-party outages may cause temporary interruptions.
- The Contributor is not entitled to compensation for interruptions or reduced availability.

21. Confidentiality

- The Contributor treats information about the following as confidential:
 - o Customers;
 - o pricing;
 - o Enterprise Agreements;
 - o analytics;
 - o payout structures;
 - o business information;
 - o technical systems.
- This obligation continues after termination of the relationship.

22. Customer relationships and platform protection

- All Customer relationships, Customer data, leads, analytics, sales information and platform data remain the exclusive property of DroneStock.
- The Contributor acquires no independent right to Customer relationships originating through the Platform.
- The Contributor must not approach DroneStock Customers directly with the aim of arranging transactions outside the Platform.
- The Contributor must not use DroneStock platform data, Customer information or commercial information for competing activities.
- The Contributor must not apply automated systems, scraping, harvesting, reverse engineering or data mining to the Platform or Customer information.
- The Contributor must refrain from actions aimed at arranging transactions, licences or commercial relationships outside DroneStock where those relationships originated through the Platform.
- DroneStock may take measures in the event of breach, including removing Content, suspending payouts, terminating accounts and recovering damages.

23. Enforcement

- In the event of breach, DroneStock may:
 - o remove Content;
 - o block accounts;
 - o suspend payouts;
 - o revoke Customer Licences only where grounds exist under the applicable Licence Terms or law; a breach by the Contributor alone does not automatically terminate a Customer's Licence;
 - o recover damages;
 - o take legal action.
- DroneStock retains all statutory and contractual rights.
- In the event of infringements, DroneStock may recover investigation costs, legal costs and internal enforcement costs from the Contributor.
- DroneStock may offset outstanding remuneration against loss or

Contributor Agreement DroneStock – 2026 (V4)

24. Force majeure

- Force majeure means any circumstance beyond DroneStock's reasonable control that makes performance unreasonable to require, including internet and network outages, cyberattacks, hacking, personal data breaches, outages at hosting, cloud or payment providers, government measures, sanctions, airspace closures and enforcement by supervisory authorities.
- Obligations are suspended during force majeure.
- DroneStock is not liable to pay compensation in the event of force majeure.

25. Transfer of rights

- The Contributor may not transfer rights or obligations under this Agreement without DroneStock's prior written consent.
- In the context of a sale, reorganisation or transfer of the business, DroneStock may transfer this Agreement to a successor operator that continues the relevant platform activities, subject to the statutory requirements for transfer of contract.
- A Contributor acting in the course of a business or profession gives advance cooperation to this transfer of contract, provided the successor operator assumes the relevant rights and obligations within the existing contractual limits.
- The Contributor is informed in writing of the identity and contact details of the new contracting party and the transfer date. Where the Contributor acts as a Consumer, the necessary cooperation for the specific transfer of contract is obtained separately and validly.
- The transfer does not in itself change the agreed remuneration percentages, existing individual rights, remuneration due, exploitation restrictions or Customer Licences already granted. It does not provide additional consent to generative AI training or transfer the Contributor's copyright.
- A change in shareholders where the same legal person remains the contracting party does not in itself constitute a transfer of contract. Separate changes to terms or data processing are handled under the rules applicable to them.

26. Survival clause

- Provisions relating to:
 - o intellectual property;
 - o indemnity;
 - o liability;
 - o confidentiality;
 - o Licences already granted;
 - o payment obligations;
 - o platform protection;
 - o tax obligations;
 - o self-billing provisions;

27. No obligation to exploit

- DroneStock is not obliged to commercially exploit, sell, promote, distribute or keep Content available.

- DroneStock independently determines whether, when and how Content is offered or promoted.
- The Contributor has no entitlement to minimum revenue, minimum visibility, guaranteed sales or commercial efforts by DroneStock.

- This Agreement does not oblige the Contributor to be exclusively available to DroneStock.

29. Changes

- DroneStock may amend this Agreement subject to applicable law and existing individual arrangements.
- A substantive change is communicated to the Contributor in advance on a durable medium, for example by email with a retainable version of the new agreement. The notice states the main changes and the intended effective date.
- Where the Platform-to-Business Regulation applies, a notice period of at least fifteen days applies, or a longer reasonable period where the nature of the change requires it. A shorter period is used only where a statutory exception applies.
- The Contributor is informed of the options for terminating the agreement before the change takes effect and the consequences of doing so.
- DroneStock may require explicit acceptance of a new version. Earlier acceptances remain recorded as history. Acceptance before the announced effective date does not automatically bring that date forward.
- Changes are not applied retroactively to purchases already paid for, remuneration due or existing individual rights, except under a legally valid separate arrangement or statutory obligation.

30. Invalidity or voidability

- If a provision of this Agreement proves void or voidable, the remaining provisions remain fully in force.
